Executive Director: Christy Matthews

BACK TO SCHOOL

As the new school year approaches, we are reminded that education is about so much more than grades—it is about discovering the unique gifts God has placed within each young person. In Matthew 25:14–30, Jesus teaches the Parable of the Talents, reminding us that we are called to use the gifts we have been given with courage and purpose. At The Post Youth Center, we believe every student has incredible potential waiting to be developed. As backpacks are packed and classrooms begin to fill, we are excited to welcome our youth back into our after-school program, where learning continues beyond the final school bell. Through mentorship, encouragement, and meaningful relationships, we strive to help every student build confidence, strengthen character, and discover the purpose God has for their life.

Imagine a student who walks through the school day feeling unnoticed, unsure of where they belong. After school, they step through the doors of The Post and are greeted by caring adults and friends who know their name, ask about their day, and believe in their future. Those simple moments of connection can change everything. Healthy relationships help young people grow beyond the classroom walls, giving them a safe place to learn, laugh, ask questions, and dream bigger. This school year, we are honored to walk alongside our youth as they grow academically, emotionally, socially, and spiritually. Together, we are helping build brighter futures—one student, one relationship, and one opportunity at a time.
